COURSE DESCRIPTION

“People who love to eat are always the best people” - Julia Child.
This course is an exploration of cultural influences on nutrition and food choices with emphasis on traditional foods. Students will learn about the cuisines of the regions of the U.S. and the nations visited on our Semester at Sea voyage. We will discuss the ways in which food patterns of nations are determined by religious choices, age-old customs, taboos and traditions within the culture and the impact of geographical location, accessibility to and availability of foods. We will share our portside dining experiences and discuss the cultural origins of the foods we enjoyed on our journey through the Mediterranean, Africa, South and Central America. We will learn to cook some local foods in one of our ports of call.

LEARNING OBJECTIVES

- Understand the ways that culture influences food selection, preparation practices, and traditions.
- Assess the impacts of values, religion, gender and health on human dietary practices.
- Explain the historical, sociological, anthropological, economic, and political perspectives of food and its consumption.
- Analyze patterns of consumption related to social, political, and economic relationships.
- Evaluate trends in industrialization and contemporary agriculture practices along with their effects on the people, the place and the product.
- Discuss controversial issues related to what we eat, why we eat it and the impacts of our decisions.
- Identify and apply knowledge of food and society to practices in each of the countries the SAS voyage.

FIELD WORK

Semester at Sea field experiences allow for an unparalleled opportunity to compare, contrast, and synthesize the different cultures and countries encountered over the course of the voyage. In addition to the one field class, students will complete independent field assignments that span multiple countries.

Field Class & Assignment

The field class for this course is on Monday December 2 in Guayaquil, Ecuador.

Field Class attendance is mandatory for all students enrolled in this course. Do not book individual travel plans or a Semester at Sea sponsored trip on the day of your field class. Field Classes constitute at least 20% of the contact hours for each course, and are developed and led by the instructor.

Guayaquil, Ecuador
Take a morning tour of a Cacao farm to follow the production of chocolate from farm to healthful treat. In the afternoon visit the Mercado Caraguay for a traditional crab boil lunch at one of the small stands and then explore the market for medicinal foods.

Date and Time: Monday December 2, 1000 hours

Objectives: Students will gain insights into the production and health benefits of cacao and discover some healthy regional foods and fresh herbs with medicinal value.
Students will prepare by reading Nutritional Anthropology Chapter 31 From Aphrodisiac to Health Food: A Cultural History of Chocolate (assigned reading)

Evaluation: Students will prepare by participating in class discussion and viewing course materials related Brazil and Ecuador. They will be graded on two outcomes. 1) Participation and engagement with local guides and 2) A 2-3 page essay on how culture and society influence food habits for health. Include up to 5 photos.

Independent Field Assignments

Experiences in port will enhance course material by allowing you to experience local food and food customs. As you are eating and drinking in country, be sure to sample local cuisine, observe local food habits, and talk to locals about food sources, choices, and customs. In one port, interview a local (vendor at a market, wait staff at a restaurant, concierge at a hotel or other encounter in a safe environment) about traditional local foods. Your final report will consist of a 2-3 page summary of your experiences which included photos and a short video of your interview.

METHODS OF EVALUATION

Field Class (20%)

Independent Field Assignments (20%)

Exam 1 (20%)
To include material from classes 1-13, their readings, and class discussions

Final Exam (20%)
To include classes 15-25, their readings, and class discussions

Class Participation (10%)
You are expected to prepare for each class by reading the assigned chapter or paper, viewing movie if assigned to run on the loop and/or reflecting on recent port visits.
Field Class (20%)

Oral Presentation (10%)
Oral Presentations will be panels led by small groups during one of four times presentation times during the semester. Panels will share their experiences and lead discussions revolving around cultural comparisons and contrasts experienced in the various legs of the voyage.

ATTENDANCE/ENGAGEMENT IN THE ACADEMIC PROGRAM

Attendance in all Semester at Sea classes, including the Field Class, is mandatory. Students must inform their instructors prior to any unanticipated absence and take the initiative to make up missed work in a timely fashion. Instructors must make reasonable efforts to enable students to make up work which must be accomplished under the instructor’s supervision (e.g., examinations, laboratories). In the event of a conflict in regard to this policy, individuals may appeal using established CSU procedures.

LEARNING ACCOMMODATIONS

Semester at Sea provides academic accommodations for students with diagnosed learning disabilities, in accordance with ADA guidelines. Students who will need accommodations in a class, should contact ISE to discuss their individual needs. Any accommodation must be discussed in a timely manner prior to implementation.

A letter from the student’s home institution verifying the accommodations received on their home campus (dated within the last three years) is required before any accommodation is provided on the ship. Students must submit this verification of accommodations to academic@isevoyages.org as soon as possible, but no later than two months prior to the voyage. More details can be found within the Course Registration Packet, as posted to the Courses and Field Classes page no later than one month prior to registration.

STUDENT CONDUCT CODE

The foundation of a university is truth and knowledge, each of which relies in a fundamental manner upon academic integrity and is diminished significantly by academic misconduct.
Academic integrity is conceptualized as doing and taking credit for one’s own work. A pervasive attitude promoting academic integrity enhances the sense of community and adds value to the educational process. All within the University are affected by the cooperative commitment to academic integrity. All Semester at Sea courses adhere to this Academic Integrity Policy and Student Conduct Code.

Depending on the nature of the assignment or exam, the faculty member may require a written declaration of the following honor pledge: “I have not given, received, or used any unauthorized assistance on this exam/assignment.”
